SRI LANKA EXPORT DEVELOPMENT BOARD

FORWARD

Exports are a key driver of economic growth, foreign exchange generation, employment, productivity, and competitiveness. In the context of Sri Lanka's economic transformation, moving towards a private sector-led, export- and FDI-driven development strategy is essential for achieving sustainable growth, strengthening external resilience, and deepening integration with the global economy.

In this context, the EDB is pleased to present the 39th Volume of its flagship statistical publication, "Export Performance Indicators 2025." The publication provides a comprehensive overview of Sri Lanka's external trade and export performance, including the contribution of exports to key economic indicators such as GDP and the trade balance. It also provides insights into the performance of major export sectors, products, and markets.

The publication presents export data for 2025 and the preceding five years, while selected key indicators are provided for a ten-year historical period, enabling users to identify emerging trends and assess long-term developments in Sri Lanka's export sector. Export values are presented in United States Dollars (USD) and analysed by export regions, markets, products, and product groups. The EDB classification covers 20 global regions, 100 markets, and 179 products/product groups, supported by percentage shares and annual growth rates for ease of analysis and comparison.

Over the years, Export Performance Indicators has become a trusted and widely used reference for policymakers, researchers, exporters, investors, development partners, and other stakeholders. The publication is intended to support evidence-based policy formulation, strategic decision-making, market analysis, and a better understanding of Sri Lanka's export performance.

The EDB gratefully acknowledges Sri Lanka Customs and other government institutions and agencies for their valuable cooperation and for providing the data and information required for the preparation of this publication. The EDB also welcomes feedback and suggestions from users to continuously improve the accuracy, relevance, and usefulness of this publication.

The Policy & Strategic Planning Division of the EDB coordinated the preparation of this publication. I extend my sincere appreciation to all EDB officers, government institutions, agencies, and other stakeholders whose valuable contributions, expertise, and cooperation supported the successful completion of this publication.

ABOUT EDB

The Sri Lanka Export Development Board (EDB) is the apex government institution responsible for the development and promotion of Sri Lanka's exports. Since its establishment in 1979, the EDB has played a pivotal role in strengthening the country's export sector. Over more than four decades, its mandate and scope have evolved beyond traditional merchandise exports to encompass a broader range of export products and services, while responding to changing global trade dynamics, emerging market opportunities, technological developments, and evolving international market requirements.

As a key institution driving Sri Lanka's export agenda, the EDB serves as a Policy Advisor, Monitor, Facilitator, Knowledge Provider, and Promoter, working closely with government institutions, the private sector, industry associations, development partners, and other stakeholders. Its activities encompass export policy and strategy, market intelligence, sector development, trade promotion, exporter development, capacity building, research, and international market access.

The EDB is governed by a Board of Directors representing key government ministries and leading private sector stakeholders, providing strategic direction and strengthening public-private sector collaboration. Its professional workforce brings expertise in trade development, market intelligence, sector development, research, capacity building, and international business.

A key priority of the EDB is to promote inclusive, diversified, and regionally balanced export development. Through island-wide outreach and regional programmes, the Board supports Small and Medium Enterprises (SMEs), emerging exporters, and potential exporters by providing advisory services, training, market intelligence, awareness programmes, and buyer–seller linkages to strengthen export readiness and expand participation in international trade.

The EDB also promotes product and market diversification, value addition, innovation, digitalization, sustainability, and integration into global value chains. By monitoring emerging trends in international trade, changing consumer preferences, technological developments, sustainability requirements, and international market regulations, the EDB supports Sri Lankan enterprises in adapting to an increasingly competitive global environment.

Through these efforts, the EDB seeks to build a diversified, resilient, inclusive, and globally competitive export sector, while creating greater opportunities for businesses across the country to participate in international trade. By connecting local capabilities with global opportunities, the EDB contributes to strengthening Sri Lanka's export base and supporting sustainable long-term economic development.

19. MARKET CONCENTRATION OF SRI LANKA'S EXPORT PRODUCT SECTOR

Concentration index is a statistical parameter which provides a measurement of the market concentration of certain product, a product sector or of all products of a country as a whole. Ideally lower the market concentrations lower the risk for exports due to market failure. Market should be discrete and the share of each market should be fairly equal, so that the collapse of one or a few markets will not seriously affect the product's overall exports. To analyse the said scenario and evaluate the concentration index the following formula has been used.

Concentration Index = (HHi)

$$\left(\frac{\sqrt{\sum_{i=1}^{n} \left(\frac{x_i}{X} \right)^2} - \sqrt{\frac{1}{n}}}{1 - \sqrt{\frac{1}{n}}} \right) \times 100$$

Xi = A Product sector's exports to country i (i = UK, USA, Italy…)

X = Total of a product sector's exports to all countries (X = Xi + .. + Xn)

n = Number of buyer countries

This formula takes into account the export share in each market of a particular product and calculates an index which can vary between the limits zero and hundred. The optimal situation of the index would be when the concentration index is zero, which is when the shares are exactly equal among all the markets. At the other extreme, the value goes up to 100 if the market shares are drastically different from each other with the difference between the highest share and the lowest share being considerably large.

The calculated indices for the main export product sectors of Sri Lanka are tabulated in page 29 :

The table reveals that all product sectors have diversified their number of destinations over the period of 1990 – 2025. Total merchandise expanded from 136 destinations in 1990 to 212 in 2025, while the overall export market concentration index improved slightly from 23.4% to 22.4% indicating reduce dependence on a few markets.

Although most sectors demonstrate improved or stable market diversification, sectors such as Rubber & Rubber based products, Food & Beverages and Boat Building, continue to exhibit relatively high market concentration despite or increase in the number of export destinations.

20. EXPORT PRODUCT CONCENTRATION 2010-2025

Year	Export Value in Mn.US$	No of Products @ HS 6 digit Level	HH Index %
2010	8,626.00	3392	2.35

2025	13581.37	3697	1.56

THE HERFINDHAL HIRSCHMAN INDEX

This index is widely used to measure the concentration of products mix exported by the country and is defined as,

Where xi is the export of commodity, X the country's total exports and n the number of export products. Index (%) approaching zero indicates less degree of concentration and index (%) approaching 100 implies a high degree of concentration.

Lower HHI ⟶ Greater export product diversification.

27. CURRENT TREND IN GLOBAL DEMAND FOR SRI LANKA'S PRODUCTS - 2025

The following chart shows the performance of Sri Lanka's top 20 export product categories at the 2-digit HS Code level in the global market in 2025. Each bubble represents a specific product category, while the size of the bubble indicates the value of Sri Lanka's exports of that product to the world market, in US dollars.

If the bubbles fall within the "Winners in Growing Sectors" category, indicating both high global import growth and an increasing share of Sri Lanka's exports, it means that global demand for the product is growing while Sri Lanka is also strengthening its position in the world market. For example, Preparations of vegetables, fruit, nuts or other parts of plants (HS 20) and Miscellaneous edible preparations (HS 21) fall into this category. Trade promotion efforts for these products should focus on expanding supply capacity, strengthening market access, and supporting exporters to meet the growing demand in international markets.

If the bubbles fall into the "Losers in Growing Sectors" category, it means that global demand for the product is increasing, but Sri Lanka's share of world exports is declining. For example, Coffee, tea, maté and spices (HS 09); Natural or cultured pearls, precious or semi-precious stones, precious metals and metals clad (HS 71); Other vegetable textile fibres, paper yarn and woven fabrics of paper yarn (HS 53); Edible fruit and nuts; peel of citrus fruit or melons (HS 08); and Tobacco and manufactured tobacco substitutes (HS 24) fall into this category. As these products may face supply-side constraints and other competitiveness challenges, it is important to identify and address the underlying bottlenecks in order to regain and strengthen Sri Lanka's share of the growing global market.

If the bubbles fall into the "Losers in Declining Sectors" category, it means that global demand for the product is declining and Sri Lanka's share of world exports is also decreasing. For example, Articles of apparel and clothing accessories, knitted or crocheted (HS 61); Articles of apparel and clothing accessories, not knitted or crocheted (HS 62); Rubber and articles thereof (HS 40); and Fish and crustaceans, molluscs and other aquatic invertebrates (HS 03) fall into this category. Trade promotion efforts for these products should adopt an integrated approach that addresses both demand and supply-side constraints, while focusing on improving competitiveness, product diversification, and exploring new market opportunities.

If the bubbles fall into the "Winners in Declining Sectors" category, it means that global demand for the product is declining, but Sri Lanka's share of world exports is increasing, indicating that Sri Lanka is strengthening its competitive position despite a shrinking global market. For example, Other made-up textile articles; sets; worn clothing and worn textile articles; rags (HS 63) fall into this category. From a trade promotion perspective, targeted niche marketing strategies should be adopted to maintain Sri Lanka's competitive position, retain existing markets, and identify specialized market segments with potential for sustainable growth.

The export performance patterns highlighted above demonstrate the importance of adopting product-specific trade promotion strategies and implementing targeted measures to address the specific demand and supply-side constraints that hinder the dynamic expansion of Sri Lanka's exports. Such strategies would enable Sri Lanka to better capitalize on opportunities in the global market, strengthen its export competitiveness, and maximize the benefits arising from international trade opportunities for its export products.
