OUR PREMIUM TEAS

Single Estate Teas

Ceylon single estate tea comes from a single plantation. The estate has its own name and a known geographical location, elevation, climate and soil characteristics. Because the tea factory is located here, the freshly plucked tea leaves can be processed immediately and turned into the final product. Single estate tea is not blended and comes in its pure form directly from the estate factory. Our single estate black teas are selected from the best mid-grown and high-grown tea plantation of Sri Lanka.

Ceylon Black Teas

Black tea is the fully oxidized tea, made popular in Europe by British. Tea growing at Sri Lanka were started by British by end of the 19th century, after the death of coffee plantations there. Most of tea produced at Sri Lanka uses the orthodox method, which is largely manual, as opposed to the CTC method, which uses machinery. Depending on the elevation of a tea plantation, tea produced in Sri Lanka can be classified as one of the three: low-grown, mid-grown and high-grown.

Ceylon Green Teas

Green tea comes from the same plant as black tea (Camellia Sinensis), but it does not undergo oxidation during manufacturing, as black tea does. To prevent oxidation, the fresh tea leaves are first steam-heated in the factory. This is unlike the withering process used for black tea. Ceylon green tea from Sri Lanka follows grade nomenclature similar to that for Chinese green tea. The three basic types are Chunmee (CH), Gun Powder (GP), and Young Hyson (YH).

Flavoured Teas

We create our flavoured Ceylon teas by adding dried fruits and flowers to quality black or green tea. The natural flavours of bergamot, ginger, cinnamon, lemon, jasmine, and much more others enhance the qualities of our premium teas and add to the pleasure of tea drinking.

TEA TASTING

The Tea Room is well equipped with all the facilities for Grading and Tasting. Tea tasting operations will be carried out by our expert tea tasters in order to evaluate the quality of the tealeaves and liquors. Weekly pre-auction samples, production samples and the final product samples will be graded and tasted according to the buyer's standards of various destinations.
